INTERVIEW GUIDES

Self Esteem: (Ability To Handle Rejection)

Problem Area

They are currently depreciating their inner worth, measuring themselves against ideals and expectations and blowing up their imperfections. As a result, they may have difficulty keeping control and promise more than they can deliver or more than is necessary to make the sale.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on an examination of their inner self doubts to find out whether they can:

1. be honest with themselves and with you about their mistakes and their potential for error;
2. handle personal criticism;
3. be realistic in what they say they can do.
4. Realistically describe their strengths and their limitations and relate them specifically to selling.

INTERVIEW GUIDES

Results Oriented: (Drive)

Problem Area

They have a cautious, skeptical attitude toward practical thinking which can cause them to be hesitant about deciding. As a result of this skepticism, they may not feel an urgency to act, may overlook crucial, immediate issues and become distracted by circumstances around them.

Interview Notes

The interview should examine their lack of focus and attention on immediate needs and circumstances:

1. Test their ability to develop and maintain a focus on results. Utilize a mock sales interview to examine their priorities for action and their willingness to be distracted from closing the sale.
2. Ask them to make a list of sales tasks and require them to prioritize this list. Have them be specific.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Social Recognition: (Drive)

Problem Area

They are in social/role transition feeling frustrated and uncertain about what you want to do. As a result of this transition, their decisions and actions can be inconsistent and they may overlook potential in their environment focusing instead on the past or on what they think ought to be.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on the effect of their social/ role transition:

1. Ask them to describe their key talent as a salesperson and their weaknesses. Test their ability to see their weaknesses as opportunities for development.
2. Be careful not to hype your sales position. Make them decide on their own that your job is best for them.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Role Satisfaction: (Self Starting Ability)

Problem Area

They are currently in social/role transition uncertain about what they want to do and feeling frustrated and dissatisfied about current circumstances. This uncertainty can lead them to impulsive decisions or actions and to either over estimate or under estimate of their current opportunities.

Interview Notes

The interview should examine the risk of their social/role transition leading them to miss opportunities and focus more on what is not working than what is:

1. Test their ability to tell you what they find satisfying about selling. Then ask them to describe why they want to sell your products and services.
2. Discover their priorities in life and what they are willing to do to accomplish their goals and objectives.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Money, Material Things: (Motivation)

Problem Area

Lack of attention to practical thinking and results can lead them to discount the importance of money and material things unless money and the attainment of material wealth is an personal ideal or goal which commands their time, energy and commitment.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on the motivational effects of skeptical, cautious attitudes toward practical thinking, material things, and practical consequences of decisions:

1. Require them to prioritize their tasks as a salesperson giving specific examples of how they would perform those tasks while selling your products and services.
2. Ask them to describe how your salespeople should dress and present themselves to clients.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Social Recognition: (Motivation)

Problem Area

They are currently in social/role transition leaving them uncertain about what type of social/role image will make them feel comfortable and motivate consistently to action. As a result they are likely to shift from compulsive attention to social and role activities to delays and hesitation.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on the uncertainty and the indecisiveness concerning their social/role image:

1. Ask them to describe the type of selling position which would make them feel satisfied and competent.
2. Require them to describe what would motivate them to sell your products and services and what could prohibit them from succeeding in your organization.
