Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Self Esteem: (Ability To Handle Rejection)

Problem Area

They are currently depreciating their inner worth, measuring themselves against ideals and expectations and blowing up their imperfections. As a result, they may have difficulty keeping control and promise more than they can deliver or more than is necessary to make the sale.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on an examination of their inner self doubts to find out whether they can:

1. be honest with themselves and with you about their mistakes and their potential for error;
2. handle personal criticism;
3. be realistic in what they say they can do.
4. Realistically describe their strengths and their limitations and relate them specifically to selling.

INTERVIEW GUIDES

Self Assessment: (Ability To Handle Rejection)

Problem Area

They may have difficulty clearly and realistically assessing their strengths and limitations. As a result, they may bite off more than they can chew, overlook their potential for mistakes and have difficulty maintaining consistent confidence in their ability to perform.

Interview Notes

The interview should investigate the impact of their inadequate self image:

1. Ask them to describe what they think would give them a sense of satisfaction and achievement; then, test their ability to see opportunities for actualizing that achievement selling your products and services.
2. Make certain that you do not hype them. Allow them to state their priorities and then critically examine those.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Sensitivity To Others: (Ability To Handle Rejection)

Problem Area

They are extremely concerned about meeting the needs and interests of prospects and clients and as a result can become overly sensitive about what others think or say. As a result, they may have difficulty handling objections and dealing with difficult closing situations.

Interview Notes

The interview should explore their ability to deal with controversial issues, closing issues and other problems which can result from their sensitivity to others.

1. Require them to respond to a situation in which they have made more promises and commitments than they are able to fulfill.
2. Suggest an interview situation in which they must balance client needs and the demands of closing.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Social Recognition: (Drive)

Problem Area

They are in social/role transition feeling frustrated and uncertain about what you want to do. As a result of this transition, their decisions and actions can be inconsistent and they may overlook potential in their environment focusing instead on the past or on what they think ought to be.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on the effect of their social/ role transition:

1. Ask them to describe their key talent as a salesperson and their weaknesses. Test their ability to see their weaknesses as opportunities for development.
2. Be careful not to hype your sales position. Make them decide on their own that your job is best for them.

Sales Screen

INTERVIEW GUIDES

Ambition: (Drive)

Problem Area

They have such a perfectionistic attitude toward themselves that can restrict your options for decision and action and lead them to hesitate until they believe the perfect conditions exist. As a result, they may unnecessarily delay acting on buying signals or making a presentation.

Interview Notes

The interview should explore the effect of stubborn, perfectionistic thinking on their ability to get things done:

1. Test their ability to deal with ideas and options different from theirs.
2. Require them to set goals for a one year period. Then suggest that a major event such as illness interrupts their plan. Ask them to adjust their plan to meet this change. Watch carefully how they handle this problem.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Consistency: (Self Starting Ability)

Problem Area

A combination of a compulsive need to push ahead and a feeling of frustration and dissatisfaction about their circumstances can lead to inconsistencies in decisions and actions and potentially can cause them to shift from demanding too much to demanding too little of themselves.

Interview Notes

The interview should examine the effect of the compulsive drive to get things done on their ability to see and accept opportunities and get things done:

1. Ask them to describe why they want to sell your products and services and how they would get the job done.
2. Be careful not to hype them the opportunities in your organization. Spend at least as much time what you demand as on what they would gain from the sales job.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Role Satisfaction: (Self Starting Ability)

Problem Area

They are currently in social/role transition uncertain about what they want to do and feeling frustrated and dissatisfied about current circumstances. This uncertainty can lead them to impulsive decisions or actions and to either over estimate or under estimate of their current opportunities.

Interview Notes

The interview should examine the risk of their social/role transition leading them to miss opportunities and focus more on what is not working than what is:

1. Test their ability to tell you what they find satisfying about selling. Then ask them to describe why they want to sell your products and services.
2. Discover their priorities in life and what they are willing to do to accomplish their goals and objectives.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Social Recognition: (Motivation)

Problem Area

They are currently in social/role transition leaving them uncertain about what type of social/role image will make them feel comfortable and motivate consistently to action. As a result they are likely to shift from compulsive attention to social and role activities to delays and hesitation.

Interview Notes

The interview should focus on the uncertainty and the indecisiveness concerning their social/role image:

1. Ask them to describe the type of selling position which would make them feel satisfied and competent.
2. Require them to describe what would motivate them to sell your products and services and what could prohibit them from succeeding in your organization.

Sales Screen INTERVIEW GUIDES

Personal Development: (Motivation)

Problem Area

They tend to be uncertain about which course of action is best for them, about what strategies, plans and goals will provide a sense of accomplishment and fulfillment. As a result, they are likely to delay decisions or stay locked in one direction even when they believe that direction is wrong.

Interview Notes

The interview should explore the effects of inconsistent and confusing ideas and feelings about self development:

1. Ask them to describe themselves selling for you. Require them to tell you why they believe they can sell for you and to describe what would keep them from succeeding.
2. Ask them to describe the conditions which must exist for them to be able and willing to demand the most out of themselves and succeed regardless of circumstances.
